INDUSTRIAL CO-OPERATION IN AUSTRALIA

The winning personality of the Honorable Crawford Vaughan, ex-minister of South Australia, who spoke in Billings Hall, Friday evening, on the subject of Industrial Legislation in Australia, combined with his genial presentation of the subject, more than held the interest of his audience. He first pointed out the many likenesses between the United States and Australia, and then showed how his country had attempted to cope with the problem of co-operation in modern industry.

Australia has attempted to work out this principle by means of wage boards and compulsory arbitration. The wages board consists of six members representing the interests of capital, six representing labor, and a chairman appointed by the board to lead the discussion. In this way a contact between the two forces of industry is provided, and, as Mr. Vaughan so well put it, "the darkness of cross-purposes is illumined with a light similar to that produced when the negative and the positive wires of electricity are brought together." This system is not a new experiment, but is as old as Australia itself and has been successful there for thirty years.

The compulsory arbitration laws do not prevent strikes, but force the conflicting parties to abide by the award of the arbitration board if both agree to arbitration. The advantage of this system is that the public is given a clear presentation of both sides of the dispute. "There is nothing more powerful today," said Mr. Vaughan, "than public opinion, but it must be informed public opinion." Such opinion will be far more effective in perceiving the cause and producing the remedy for such disputes than any decision arrived at by force. Out of these compulsory arbitration laws came the Whitley Councils in England which have taken such a prominent part in the settling of labor disputes, but these were not invested with the same forces of law as were the Australian arbitration boards. Although the latter have not abolished strikes, they have minimized the bitterness, the intensity and the duration of those which do occur. Mr. Vaughan also emphasized the value of the movement among employers to share profits with their employees, for in that way, he said, "we are using in every day life the great forces which are a part of our democratic heritage."

Australia has also made many radical advances in the direction of housing and building problems, and in provision by the state for old age and permanent disabilities.

BARN'S FIRST INFORMAL EVENT

The Barn is presenting, instead of a Pliscoda, two real plays, with casts, copyrights and coaches, for its informal entertainment. "Carrots," written by Jules Renaud, translated by Alfred Sutro, is a charming play centering around a boy as appealing in his own way as "Penrod" is in his. He is a very much misunderstood person, with a mind whose psychological processes are worth studying.

"Miss Civilization," by Richard Harding Davis, is a most amusing comedy. The heroine is eminently satisfactory, for she outwits three men who pride themselves upon their cleverness, incidentally reserving a room for them at the nearest jail.

The plays are to be given at the Barn, 7.30 P M., November 20. 1924 will make its opening dramatic bow that night. The first appearance of the freshmen before the foot-lights promises to be a successful one.

"Carrots" is to be given on Thursday night, November 18, to the alumnae.

HARDING LEADS AT WELLESLEY

College Polls Represents Country-Wide Sentiment

On Tuesday, November 2, the "El" Table was the scene of voting other than the usual electing of college officers, when the straw vote was cast for the presidential election. Coming as they do from all parts of the country, the students duplicated the choice of the nation at large to a marked degree in casting their votes. Mr. Harding's admirers, who had made themselves evident at the political demonstrations of the preceding week, numbered enough to defeat completely the other parties.

The voting results were as follows:

Republican	669
Democrat	152
Socialist	17
Farmer-Labor	11
Prohibition	2
Pro-League Independent	1

Among those who registered previous to voting were twenty Independents and, more interesting still, one anarchist.

THE SERVICE FUND

The amount thus far pledged for the Service Fund is $14,958.74, over a thousand dollars less than last year. Over 300 names are still not represented by pledges, however, and while many of these are non-residents, who may not find it possible to contribute to the Fund, there are enough besides, it is hoped, to make the total represent only the student part of the pledges; the faculty pledges have all been grouped together.

PRESIDENT PROCLAIMS PILGRIM'S DAY

President Wilson has issued a proclamation in which he requests the observance by schools, colleges, and universities of the three-hundredth anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims. At the same time he named three members of the United States Pilgrim Tercentenary Commission. Six members had already been appointed by Congress.

Quotation from the text of the proclamation follows:

"My Fellow Countrymen: December 21, next, will mark the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, in 1620. The day will be becomingly celebrated at Plymouth under the auspices of the Plymouth Pilgrim Tercentenary Commission and at other localities in Massachusetts. While this is proper and praiseworthy, is seems to me that the influence which the ideals and principles of the Pilgrims with respect to civic liberty and human rights have had upon the formation and growth of our institutions and upon our developments and progress as a nation, merits more than a local expression of our obligation, and makes fitting a nation-wide observance of the day.

"I therefor suggest and request that the 21st of December next we observe throughout the Union with special patriotic services, in order that great events in American history that have resulted from the landing of these hearty and courageous navigators and colonists may be accentuated to the present generation of American citizens. Especially do I recommend that the day be fittingly observed in the universities, colleges, and schools of our country, to the end that salutary and patriotic lessons may be drawn from the fortitude and perseverance and the ideals of this little band of church men and women who established on this continent the first-self-determined government based on the great principle of just law and its equal application to all, and thus planted the seeds from which has sprung the mighty nation."

MID-WEEK MEETINGS: A REPLY

The editors of the News were greatly interested by the vigor of the answers to the editorial suggesting the abandonment of regular Christian Association meetings. Against our wishes, however, we are still convinced that the Wednesday evening talks are not supported by the college. Our position on the problem, therefore, remains the same.

As the authors of the Free Press comprehended, the real question raiser was whether or not C. A. should limit itself to social work. The writers urged that the mid-week meetings furnished the inspiration that made the active work of the association as valuable as it is. The News questions the force of the argument. It cannot be claimed that meetings as scantily attended as these give strong impetus to C. A's social activities. It is probable that most students find their "fine glow of feeling" in the actual performance of their service.

Webster's definition of doctrine includes the phrase "principle of faith." The pledge of the Association is a declaration of such a principle, and one, moreover, not strictly acceptable to a certain number of the students. There should be in college, parallel to the all-college government association, an all-college organization for service. One of the duties of such an organization should be the procuring, when possible, of good speakers on social or religious matters. The News had no intention of questioning the value of talks by such men as Mr. Calkins. We merely urge that the organization no longer hold meetings systematically every week, when those meetings are not supported. And we suggest that, in narrowing its interest, C. A. universalize its appeal.

"THE OPEN DOOR"

A most unusual and interesting pageant will be presented at Symphony Hall on Tuesday evening, November 16, called "The Open Door," given by alumnae and friends of Atlanta University, in commemoration of its founding fifty years ago. The poem for the pageant has been written by Mrs. Edward T. Ware, wife of President Ware, and the training of those taking part has been under Miss Gertrude Ware, his sister. Singing of old-time spirituals by a chorus of one hundred voices will be a feature of the performance. Boston is the first city in which it will be shown.

Miss Clara Emerson, '91, for a number of years a member of the staff of Atlanta, writes: "It is really very impressive and beautiful. I am not afraid that anybody who goes will fail to be deeply interested. I think no white person can go to it without a new revelation of the aspirations of the Negro."

Atlanta University has been for a good while one of the institutions to which the Missionary Committee of the Christan Association has sent an annual gift,—not so large as we wish it were, but a sign of interest, at least, in one of the most valuable institutions for the education of the negro.

Tickets, at prices from fifty cents to $2.50, may be procured by letter, with accompanying check, from A. C. Walworth, Jr., Treas., Women's Service Club, 464 Massachusetts Avenue.

AN INTERCOLLEGIATE TEA-PARTY

On Friday, November 19th, at 3 o'clock, girls from all the Women's Colleges near Boston. have been invited to meet the Henry Jewett Players at the Copley Theatre ballroom. At least twenty-five girls are wanted from each college. The tickets for this party are to be $1.00 in view of the fact that its main aim is, not to foster intercollegiate spirit but to raise money for the new Copley Theatre since the old one is to be torn down.

The first part of the afternoon is to be given over to bridge. Partners from different colleges will play and the total scores of the colleges will be collected. The five highest individual scores will receive prizes. After the bridge game, tea will be served and the Jewett Players will meet their guests.

Mrs. Gulick and Mrs. Norton, of Boston, both Wellesley graduates, will act as the Wellesley patronesses.

Anyone wishing to go will please see Elizabeth Rand, 319 Cazenove. The date for the sale of tickets will be indexed.

THE FORCE OF THE CREATIVE INSTINCT

Dr. Harry P. Ward, Professor of Christian Ethics at the Union Theological Seminary, spoke Sunday evening, November 7, in the Memorial Chapel, on "Christian Motives in Industry." Some machinery of production, he said, is obviously necessary. That now in use, however, is wrong. It is animated by false motives. No work done under pressure of fear can be very valuable. The hope of gain is powerful, but not therefore to be be justified. The possessive instinct, to which it appeals leads to division among peoples. Solidarity is essential.

Some economic experts have appealed to the creative instinct. The workers were shown what part their work had in the constructive whole. Without hope of bonus or higher wages they put out the best goods on the market.

Out of the creative instinct grows service. This Christian law of service must be organized as the vital working force of every organizations. It is, in due time, to become the animating motive of industrial life.

EXCHANGES

The oldest university in South America is located at Bogata, Columbia. It was founded in 1572.

The Treasurer of Yale University reports that $4,000,000 has been pledged towards an endowment fund on the condition that an equally large amount be secured from different sources.

Columbia University reports that, although the registration figures are incomplete, the records indicate that the number of students will exceed 31,000 which means a gain of 35% from last year. If these figures are realized, the university will be the largest educational institution in the world.

China has 20,000 students in the universities of Japan, 2,000 in the colleges and universities of the United States, and nearly a thousand in the universities of France.

Mr Vaughan concluded by saying that tho his country was attempting to solve modern economic problems in these ways, it still looked to the United States to blaze the trail in industrial reforms as it had so successfully done in the field of democracy in government.

OUR WORK IN PEKING

Katherine Williams, the secretary that Wellesley College, through the Christian Association and the Service Fund, supports at the Peking Y. W. C. A., is visiting this country for a short time on furlough, and we hope may come to tell us in person of her work. One of the last reports received from her tells of the Better Baby week which the Peking Y. W. C. A. was active in. (Both Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. in Peking are devoting special efforts to instruction in hygiene, personal and community.) "If the results of the Better Baby Contest could be measured in sound waves," she writes, "we should have made a lasting impression on the community. But in actual figures, the child that screamed the loudest, made one of the lowest scores, while the adorable ten months old prize baby had as much fun as if his chief amusement during his short life time had been doctors' examinations. Whether it was modesty or a suggestion of bedtime procedure, the undressing-room was a signal for howls and wails that never stopped till the end of the examination. When twenty-six children from six months to seven years old had gone the rounds, it was six o'clock, and hard to tell which were more relieved, children or adults. On the day when announcements were made, mothers, fathers, and children turned out in good numbers, for there were to be games for the children, a lecture for parents on "The Joys and Responsibilites of the Home," and last, the presentation of prizes and certificates. Is it at all significant that the three prize-winners were boys, and that of the eleven who attained 950 out of a possible 1000 points, only three were girls? Was it just accident, or do the boys really get better attention?"

Some houses did much better than last year, some less well, some remained about the same. Those showing considerable increase are: Claflin, Fiske, Homestead, Joslin, Norumbega, Pomeroy, Stone, Townsend, Washington, Webb and Wilder. Decrease is shown by Beebe, Cazenove, Clinton, Eliot, Freeman, Harris, Leighton, Lovewell, Noanett, Shafer, and especially Tower Court which is over $400 short of last year. In these houses pledges are probably not yet all in. Birches, Crofton and Wood are about the same. Almost all the freshman houses show increase. A good many Faculty pledges are not yet received, so that the total is much smaller than last year.

Of the pledges thus far received, nearly 500 are for $5 or less, which seems a larger proportion than last year showed. There are 88 for $25 or more, 10 of these are $100 or over. Though far fewer pledges were paid in full at once than last year, what seems still an undue number of such payments were made. Comparatively few persons have their income for the year so arranged that they can dispense a lump sum for benevolence at this time which bears a fair proportion to their whole income and expenditures. There are, however, more individual reckonings of amount to be pledged than in previous years, though a few houses or groups show a suspicious similarity in the pledge amounts.

About $8300 of the amount pledged must go to meet what are practically obligations of the college for educational, religious and relief work. The amount left, if all pledges are paid in full, is therefore small for meeting the many appeals which are coming. The News will publish next week a further account of the appeals that must be answered.

WILLIAM COLLIER IN HIS LATEST FARCE. "THE HOTTENTOT"

There is no doubt of the success of William Collier in the new farce, "The Hottentot," at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston. Since last Monday, when the play was presented for the first time hereabouts, full houses have been attracted by the cleverness of Mr. Collier and by the pronounced fun that runs throughout the performance.

Laughter runs through every scene and the dry humor of the star is provocative of the greatest enjoyment. It is declared that "The Hottentot," written by Victor Mapes and Mr. Collier, is by far the most entertaining and amusing play that Mr. Collier has produced in many seasons. The entire Boston press was unanimous in proclaiming Mr. Collier at his best in the role of a gentleman jockey in the play, a character that affords him those opportunities for convulsing his audiences with laughter, of which Mr. Collier is a past master.

For the ladies there is the added interest of seeing three stage beauties in the latest fashions, for they represent women of fashion and make several changes from street to evening gowns.

As Mr. Collier can remain only a limited time at the Hollis, since he and his company are under contract to open at the Grand Opera House in Chicago for a long run shortly, those who contemplate attending one of the performances before he leaves had better avail themselves of an early opportunity to do so, for seats are now selling well in advance and capacity audiences are the rule for the evening performances.

Mr. Collier is being presented by Sam H. Harris, who is this year producing plays independently of his former partner George M. Cohan. Mr. Harris has provided Mr. Collier with a splendid company.

A SUGGESTION

At Wellesley, we find teams for exercising all our powers except one, which claims most of our best talent. Why should we have a team for serving a ball and none for serving a rarebit? Why should beveling a blade be given preference to wielding one? In other words, why not an eating team? There is plenty of natural talent among us. Everywhere, in tearooms and refectories, we find gifted ones developing their art and keeping in practice. Why shouldn't enthusiasm be utilized?

The following items are suggested for the proposed team.

General directions: Although, of course, speed is more important than form in this sport, form would aid team-work. In the case of soup, her orders shall be "Dip and away, dip and away." In other cases "cut and stuff," or another such appropriate command may be substituted.

The following training rules should be observed during the twenve months preceding the annual competition. Infringency of these rules debars one from a II. It is required that all members of the team:

A. Sit down at the table at 6.15 P. M. and do not arise before 8.30 P M

B. Take a fudgecake every afternoon. In special cases permission may be obtained from the Head of the Sport (or the mouth, as it may be called) for the substitution of Schrafft's ice cream cake.

. Eat nothing between meals except candy, fruits, cake, sundaes, and doughnuts. Do not eat nuts, since the Department specially disapproves of cannibalism.

D. Refrain absolutely from drinking coffee, tea, cocoa, milk, or water, especially water. It is a waste of good space. Two moderate sized boxes of Maillard's may be substituted for dessert.

E. Eat six irregular meals a day (two at morning, noon and night)

F. Eat alone for one consecutive half hour between 1 P. M. and 6.15, preferably following a call-out.

G. File training reports in the sport soup plate.

Awarding of pies

I. II's shall be served at the close of the final course upon the recommendations by the Instructor, the Head and the Cook. Judgment shall be based upon:

A. Health and capacity, requiring at least a B plus for capacity and an M. D. for health.

Note: This refers to habitual capacity as well as the last official record.

B. Discipline (including speed, effort, and zeal).

C. Academic standing (no other standing required. In fact, the less standing the better).

D. Pounds gained will carry weight.

I hope this will rally all the enthusiasm of the sport around the Banner of the Spoon.

An Ardent Lover of the II.

The News has succeeded, at great expense in compiling the following statistics. Its corps of seventy-five (75) trained mathematicians has been kept busy both night and day, so that this valuable work might be given to the world.

a). 325½ pairs of gym shoes wereexcavated from the dust piles in corner closets last week.

b). 824 girls attended the Princeton-Harvard game. Eight of these were sorry Harvard did not win.

c). 39 pounds of Allen's foot-ease were bought in preparation for Sophomore Prom.

d). In one week, 3679 hairpins were found in or near Wellesley.

e). 67 Shoe soles were worn out on Central Street, last week, between the Quad. and the vill.

f). In one day, 370 pounds of fudge cake were consumed at the tearoom. On the same day 37 girls were not at dinner at their dormitories.

g). Three yards of picture wire and 9,864 thumb tacks have been purchased at Davis's this year.

IN MEMORIAM

The class of 1917 of Wellesley College deeply feels the loss of their class mate, Lois (Bangs) Walters. Her sudden death on July second was a shock to all. We hold in loving memory her enthusiasm and splendid loyalty to her class and college. Her sincere friendship and her cheerful manner endeared her to all who knew her and worked with her. To her many friends and her family, the class of 1917 sends loving sympathy.

CORRECTION

In the October 27 issue of the News occured the misstatement that the Natick Board of Health had closed the "dog-cart." We are glad to be able to correct this rumor, which was prevalent in college.

The fact, however, that the famous eating place is still open does not greatly affect Wellesley; for on October 28, an official notice was posted stating "By order of the College Board of Health, notice is hereby given that on account of the sanitary condition, no member of the College should patronize the "dog-cart" at Natick or other similar eating places."
